

More Young Orphan Girls Rescued From Sex Trafficking in Moldova...

Left: Stella's House II with the building that will become Stella's House III to the left of it.

Right: Some of the girls from Stella's House II spray painted the reverse of some wallpaper as they celebrated the purchase of the building that will become Stella's House III. These girls know firsthand, the lifeline this house will offer other orphan girls in danger of being trafficked.

The shell of what is to become Stella's House III has been purchased and is sitting ready for the next stage of development. It will cost approximately £170,000 to finish the house ready for furnishing.

Once completed, we will be able to house 25 more young orphan girls that would otherwise be put onto the streets and almost certainly trafficked.

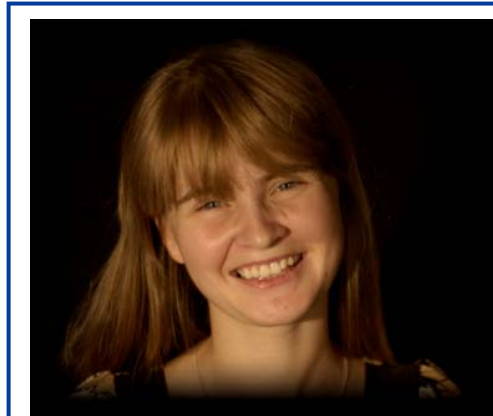

Orphans still living in extreme poverty....

We visited an orphanage in Balti (northern Moldova) where 235 children share one shower room. With only cold water and a tray of 15 shared sponges between them all!

Inset: a dirty shower with only cold water.

Below: a tray of 15 shared sponges between 235 children in the orphanage.

My name is Dasa Rosca, and I am seventeen years old. I never had a dad, my birth dad didn't want me because I was a girl. My mum left me with my uncles and they put me in the orphanage.

Everyday I would wait for my mum, but she forgot me and found a new husband. I hated myself, I cried, and I had an orphan's heart. I thought I didn't have a space in this world because I was an orphan and nobody needed me. I thought, "Why me? Why can't I have parents and a happy family?" I didn't know what to do with my life, who to be. I didn't trust anybody. I had nothing and wanted to die because I thought I couldn't have a future like normal children have.

But someone came and made me smile, to believe in me, in my future. They gave me a beautiful house, a family, love, trust, and everything I need. They made my heart happy and what is more important for me..... they told me about Jesus. They made for me a world where I have a family, Jesus and I can be happy now. My world before was empty and sad. Before I met them and came to live in Stella's House, I was an orphan. But not anymore. I have a family. They found in me something nobody found. They are making me strong, and they are the greatest thing that has happened in my life.

We need your help to change their world. Their need is great! They need everything: toiletries, clothing, shoes, bedding, toys and more.

These children who are growing up in a world of abject poverty in a communist regime that turns them onto the streets when they turn sixteen; with no prospects or hope and the very real danger of being trafficked in the sex trade.

Dirty toilets, mould and damp make for horrendous conditions in which these children live.

We have just received an urgent request from several orphanage directors in Moldova. They have been notified that their annual funding is being cut by up to $300,000 a year per orphanage with immediate effect. This means no toiletries, clothing and barely enough food to keep the children alive! We need your help-NOW!

Puppet training in Moldova...

Mark Morgan, Assistant General Manager of The New Hope Trust, took puppets and resources to train some of the girls in Stella's House I & II.

Mark has won trophies in puppetry and been training puppeteers around the UK for the past ten years. Along with teaching the girls how to use and present puppets, the girls were also taught how to write scripts and programs.

These specially written scripts will be used to teach the children in the orphanages in Moldova everything from the importance of washing hands and personal hygiene to recognising the dangers of sex trafficking.

Irina Lazaar, an orphan who used to live in the orphanage at Cupcui, now living in Stella's House I, learning how to use puppets. Irina along with other girls from Stella's Houses will be going back into the orphanages to teach the children through puppetry.

THE New Hope REPORT

Revolt in Moldova jeopardises mercy mission...

We were ten miles from the Moldovan border with a team of 12 people when we received word of a revolt taking place at Parliament Square in Chisinau, the capital of Moldova.

The borders were closed and had been placed on high alert. Was the risk too great to continue? What should we do?

Rioters burned the Parliament building as they protested over the re-election of the communist government. (BBC World Service, April 2009)

The need of those we were going to help was far greater than the threat of a revolution—the team decided unanimously to continue with the trip.

The border was a beehive of activity with more armed soldiers and sniffer dogs than we had ever seen before.

The soldier who took our passports away recognised the name of one of our Directors and the name of our organisation. The soldier's mother had spoken to him of the great work we had done in Moldova during the time she had worked for the government. As a result we were allowed to pass through the border and continue our mercy mission.

Moldova is officially the poorest country in Europe

United States Ambassador Opens Stella's House II

The girls of the Stella's Houses pictured with the US Ambassador and his wife at the opening of Stella's House II.

Another major milestone was achieved by The New Hope Trust on April 13th 2009 when United States Ambassador Asif Chaudhry and Mrs Charla Chaudhry cut the traditional ribbon to mark the official opening of Stella's

House II, a safe house for orphan girls who may otherwise have been trafficked.

Some of the young girls living in the safe houses recounted their stories, bringing many of the attendees to tears.

Addressing the girls now living in the homes, Ambassador Chaudhry told them they should be aware they can achieve anything they set their minds to. He said "if you want something and you work hard at it, there's no limit to what you can achieve."

Stella's Houses provide orphan girls with just such an opportunity, providing the shelter, support and skills needed to help them avoid the pitfalls that could lead to them being trafficked.
